

In Week 3, I learned how CSS works and how it is used to style and improve the appearance of a webpage. I also learned how to modify CSS properties to change the layout, colors, spacing, and overall design of a website. I did not encounter many difficulties during this activity because the instructions were easy to understand and the changes were simple to make. Whenever I needed to adjust something, I edited the CSS code and checked the result in the browser to see if it followed our professor's instructions. One improvement I made was customizing some parts of the webpage to make its appearance match the required design. Overall, this activity helped me understand the purpose of CSS and made me more comfortable with modifying the appearance of a webpage.
